Sunset Community,

As we near the end of this school, I want to take a moment to extend my deepest gratitude to each and every one of you. Thank you for the tremendous support you've shown to our school, our students, and our dedicated staff. Your partnership has made all the difference, and we are so proud of everything our students have accomplished both in and out of the classroom.

It has truly been an honor to serve this amazing community in my first year as the principal of Sunset, and I am already looking forward to the exciting opportunities and growth that next year will bring. Your trust and involvement continue to inspire and motivate us every day.

As we head into summer break, I encourage you to take this time to rest, relax, and recharge with your loved ones. Our students have worked so hard this year and they've definitely earned a break! Summer is so important to recharge but it's also a wonderful opportunity to keep those reading skills sharp. Whether it's picture books, chapter books, or a graphic novel, reading regularly helps keep young minds engaged and ready for the year ahead. With your help we will be ready to hit the ground running next year!

As we say, once a stallion always a stallion.

Wishing you a safe, and restful summer!

Isaac Hurguy
Principal

Why Screen Time Matters

Too much screen time—especially unstructured or overstimulating content—can affect children’s behavior, mood, and overall well-being. It’s linked to increased irritability, difficulty focusing, sleep disruptions, and lower physical activity. Over time, heavy screen use may also impact mental health, contributing to anxiety, low mood, or poor self-esteem. Setting limits helps kids stay more balanced, connected, and emotionally regulated.

How to Limit Screen Time During Summer Break

With summer break quickly approaching, managing screen time can easily become a daily struggle. While devices can be helpful and even educational, too much screen time can take away from active play, learning, and family connection. Here are some simple, realistic tips to help your family find a healthy balance this summer.

1. Set Clear Daily Limits

Decide how much screen time is appropriate for your child’s age (e.g., one–two hours per day for most school-age children) and communicate that boundary clearly. Use timers or apps that automatically track or limit usage.

2. Create a “First This, Then That” Routine

Set expectations that screens come after certain tasks, like:

- 30 minutes of reading
- 20 minutes of outdoor play
- One household chore

This structure teaches responsibility and balance.

3. Designate “Screen-Free” Zones & Times

Make mealtimes, bedrooms, and car rides screen-free to encourage conversation and rest. You can also pick certain days or hours as “tech-free” for the whole family.

4. Offer Alternatives

Boredom often leads to screen requests. It’s OK for kids to be bored! Boredom leads to creativity. Have a go-to list of activities like:

- Art or LEGO stations
- Puzzles or board games
- Water play, scavenger hunts, or bike rides
- Library events or free community activities (like splash pads and museum days)

5. Use Screen Time as a Tool, not a Crutch

Try not to use screens as a default babysitter. If you need quiet time, set a clear start and stop time, and let them know what’s expected afterward.

6. Lead by Example

Kids notice how adults use screens. Model balanced tech use by putting your phone down during family time and engaging in offline activities yourself.

WESD DISTRICT PROGRAMS

Are you currently experiencing temporary living arrangements due to eviction, job loss or a traumatic event? The Washington Elementary School District offers services to families through the federal McKinney Vento Homeless Assistance Act. The act requires that children and families who are in a temporary living situation be offered services and support. Services provided can include enrollment assistance, nutrition services, clothing or school supplies, community referrals, and in some cases, transportation. If you are living in any of the following temporary circumstances: with another family or friend due to financial hardship, living in a shelter, transitional housing, in a hotel/motel, you may fit the criteria for assistance under this act. Please contact the office at 602-896-5600 to inquire further about qualifying for this program.
